Today

(Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company)

IT IS A TROUBLED world—look at today's news. Americans are fortunate in their prosperity and safety.

The French killed many in Danacous—REBELS they are called, because they won't submit to foreign rule.

Spaniards and French, fighting desperately against the Rifis, said to be in flight over the sandhills of North Africa. Those little-bells to the Rifis, but Europe wants—abolish them.

REBELS IN NICARAGUA seize coast towns, revolution there, American marines have pacified things somewhat.

The Belgian cabinet is out and the King must ask Emile Brouet, Socialist, to head the government. Hard on the King; it would mean high finance in death in this country. But they are used to it in Europe, where half the statesmanship belongs to the Socialist party.

THEN CONSIDER little things:

Theodore Kapel, San Francisco janitor, tired of poverty and hard work, rented a fine room, hung the walls with velvet, spread a handsome yellow silk curtain over the bed, bought and wore a "full dress" suit, representing his idea of luxury, arranged tall candles around his bed, turned on the gas and died.

At about the same time Tom Murray, a desperado who killed two guards in the effort to escape from prison, hanged himself in his cell. So goes the world. Be grateful if you have no serious worries.

PEARY, AMERICAN, was first of our era to REACH the North Pole. For years he tried, spent months locked in the ice, crawling over the snow, dragged by dogs.

Commander Byrd, American, is the first that ever FLEW over the pole, making the trip in a few hours, driven by the power of engines, planes, in the early millions of years ago. Good credit should go to Peary, who made the first airplane that carried him.

MORE IMPORTANT than flying over the pole is PROGRESS as shown in the change from dog sled to flying machine. In a few years anybody that chooses to sail through cold air may take down upon APPROXIMATELY the place where the North Pole is. Commander Byrd could not within twenty miles locate the pole exactly.

Many semi-human beings may have been there before him, in past geological eras. Healed skeletons probably hunted tiger-like animals on the spot that we now call the North Pole, and another star, the "Polar Star."

THIS WINOING, shifting earth, turning round before the sun like a spotted ball before the fire, changes its position and its "poles" through the ages. Men have lived here five hundred thousand years, at least, and have seen many a shift. Baked skeletons probably hunted tiger-like animals on the spot that we now call the North Pole.

But an American was first to fly over the frozen pole of today. That is something.

THIS PARAGRAPH helps us to realize what the firing machine will mean to transportation. "Byrd intended to return by way of Pearyland, and estimated that the round trip of 1,600 miles would require 24 hours. He beat his own estimate by 84 hours.

Sixteen hundred miles over the frozen North in 16 1/2 hours. This means that Chicago will soon be three hours from New York city.

SLAYERS OF 'HANGING PROSECUTOR' BELIEVED HIDING IN NORTH END

A number of Chicago gangsters involved in the killing of William McSwiggin, "hanging prosecutor" of Cook County, Ill., are believed to be in Boston, the police were informed today by Chicago officials who asked that they be rounded up and held.

In the request received from Chicago, it was stated that the thugs who are missing from their usual haunts in the North End of Boston, are believed to be in the North End of Boston, where they may wait.

The wanted men are frequent attendants at the ball parks. Police Superintendent Crowley, in an order to police captain, asked that a close watch be kept on the

BELIEVE PEACE IS NEAR IN BIG BRITISH STRIKE

London, May 11 (A.P.)—The British Broadcasting Company today radioed to the British public that, although no official confirmation can be obtained, there is reason to believe more toward settlement of the general strike are taking place.

Indications of an ending in the general strike deadlock became more pronounced.

A. J. Cook, the miners' chief, declared: "Peace is possible at any moment, on terms that will give economic security to the miners."

Nathan, if people had been so, do so. Under the present law the Commissioner of Public Works may, with the approval of the Governor and Council, pay him as high or as low as they please. Is that fitting a maximum?

The present legislation does not alter the regulation of my salary so far as a maximum is concerned. The only thing it does is to prevent the Commissioner of public works from giving me less than $5,000.

CAN TAKE BACK POWER. "The Legislature has the power to fix salaries and also to designate the power to some official. When that official fails to exercise that power to the satisfaction of the Legislature, that body has the right to take back into its own hands the power so designated."

The amount of money involved in this question is unimportant. What really counts is whether, under the Commonwealth's will, to pay its public employees, the Legislature "think my affiliation with the Commonwealth Service Association has something to do with his action."

The Norge made its start from Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, the dispatch said, after waiting several hours for favorable weather.

A British National Calamity which Wisdom and Patriotism Could Have Averted

"Rome, May 5 (A.P.)—Start of a decline of the British Empire is seen in the present situation by L'Impero, a Fascist newspaper.

"We are watching with emotion and with profound interest this tragedy of history."

"London, May 5 (A.P.)—The general strike is a challenge to Parliament and is the road to anarchy and ruin."

"The British Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, thus characterized the vast labor movement in support of the miners' strike."

These statements summarize the disastrous situation in England. The people of the United States deeply deplore the catastrophe which has overtaken England in the great strike, a catastrophe which might easily have been averted if only some one of the parties to the original dispute had had the intelligence or the patriotism to avert the conflict.

To begin with, the position of the coal mine owners was unreasonable. It is impossible to expect men to work in the

Four Killed as Trains Are Wrecked in Strike

London, May 11 (A.P.)—The first runs of serious accidents since the general strike began was reported today.

The famous "Flying Scotsman," an express from Edinburgh to London, one of the fastest trains in Great Britain, was wrecked near Newcastle, and the authorities feared a rail had been deliberately lowered.

The train was being run by a volunteer crew, replacing railwaymen. Luckily the engineers had a head start of an hour, and only one passenger was injured. There were 400 passengers aboard the train.

Four deaths from railway accidents have occurred in the last 24 hours. Three passengers were killed and a number hurt when a train carrying volunteers collided with a freight train near Edinburgh and another accident at Cambridge. A person was killed and two were injured.

Government Claims Strike Is Collapsing

London, May 11—The British government today, for the first time since the general strike began eight days ago, claimed that the strike is settling ineffectively.

Reports from all parts of the country show that large numbers of strikers are returning to work.

The government's campaign against the transportation and food situation continues to improve.

Government officials claimed that sections of the strikers as well as some efficiency on the part of the volunteers was responsible for improvement in the movement of services.

Early action in taking an injunction against a general strike encouraged the government and led to discussion of the possibility of legal action being extended to other unions.

The government's arrangements for maintaining the essential services and food supplies are becoming more efficient. Trains and mailbuses are running under police protection with more regularity, though two wrecks show the danger of the operation of the railways with volunteer staffs.

WON'T HASTEN TRIP.

The Norge will not hasten of its way to Alaska, Captain Amundsen said, unless weather conditions make it necessary. The Norwegian explorer is anxious to spend as much time as possible making observations in the polar regions and exploring the region beyond the Pole.

The Italian members of the crew, wrapped in huge furs, offered a courageous spectacle as the ship sailed away for ever, colder weather than that which has caused them considerable discomfort already.

The Norge carries the American, the Norwegian and Italian flags all of which will be dropped at the Pole. Captain Amundsen is expected here to arrive at Point Barrow, with the expedition and Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N.

The Norge, even with her start, may not beat Byrd for the first dirigible is necessarily slower than the Buick plane used by the American.

RACE AGAINST BYRD.

It is a race for the honor of a continuous flight from Ellsworth to the North Pole and thence to Alaska between the Amundsen-Lieby expedition and Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N.

The impression prevalent in Boston here that Byrd hopes to make a getaway tomorrow in an attempt to fly across the Pole to Alaska.

The Norge can remain in the air more than twenty days; it is estimated, and Captain Amundsen, once he reaches the territory beyond the Pole, is not likely to make any great haste to reach Alaska, conditions are favorable for continuing the cruise of exploration.

Amundsen has messaged the Norwegian Aero Club that he has been greatly encouraged by the success of the Byrd expedition and has been proved by the observations made by the American flier.

Quincy Mayor Joins in Boosting Camps

Perley E. Barbour, progressive mayor of Quincy, is added today to the lengthening list of Massachusetts executives who have voiced their approval of Summer training camps for American girls.

Another significant endorsement is that of members of the Senate: Girls' Reserves of the Cambridge Y. W. C. A.

Marguerite Beauchamp, Elizabeth Cummings of No. 9 Stone Court, Frances Perkins of No. 124 Madison street, and Dorothy Biron.

Ingham of No. Mayor Barbour, a Maple avenue expressed the enthusiasm of seventy Cambridge girls as they started on a fifteen-mile hike.

The logic of Helen Maloney's letter to President Coolidge, whether we view for communication as a letter or appeal, is unanswerable, said the Mayor of "The Granite City."

"I believe camps for girls would be excellent things, not only for the girls but for the nation. Yeoman (P) came in with the World War. We then discovered along how many other lines women could be helped in time of war, but how much more effective the young woman could have been had she known something of the discipline of military life."

"In Red Cross work, in signaling, in code and clerical activity, in nursing, and, as has been pointed out, as ambulance drivers, the young women of today could play their parts most effectively if given such training and schooling as is afforded by the military camp."

"And, as the camps are making our boys better boys, and more efficient for peace or war, I believe the camps suggested, would make our girls better girls, and therefore ready assets of the Republic."

RUM RAIDERS TO ATTACK FORT

Both raiders and defenders of the still took cover behind rocks and trees. The battle continued until late at night, when a heavy rain and high winds forced officers to abandon the assault.

One alleged moonshiner was taken into custody and is in the jail here.

SPANIARDS WIN ON TWO FRONTS IN MOROCCO

Madrid, May 11 (A.P.)—The government announces that the Spanish columns on the Alti front in Morocco have won a decisive victory. The Spanish employed machine guns and field artillery in retreating. The Spanish columns covering in the Beni Tuzin territory has occupied 2000 Del Tala de Salat and Angine to this north.

NO REALLY Important news in the British strikes except that rioting is more serious. A way out will be found, with extremes of violence.

J. H. Thomas, head of the railway union, formerly Minister of Colonies in the Cabinet of Ramsey MacDonald, says there will be no politics in the strike, and no Russian Bolshevik methods.

CARDINAL BOURNE, at high mass in London's Westminster Cathedral, has called up on Catholics to remain on the side of the government. "It is necessary," he said, "that Catholics should face clearly the fact that there is no justification for a general strike."

PREMIER BALDWIN discusses the strike, not face to face with the House of Commons as Prime Ministers have always done, but facing the microphone, talking to everybody in England at the same time.

THIS PEOPLE ARE GREAT BRITAIN, and Baldwin realizes it. His direct appeal is new and yet old.

Wanting the support of the crowd against the Senate, Baldwin now wants support of the nation against the strike. Julian G. C. says he will be in to say on the walls of Rome, where everybody might read, an early appeal to the people, one of the first political advertisements.

NEW MOREL GARAGE OPEN

Boston's newest motor hotel, the seven story, 1000-car Bowdoin square garage in Cambridge street between Bowdoin and Bowdoin squares, is a powerful attack on the downtown parking problem. Opening to its strategic location, the garage provides a remedy for much congestion and solves the problem of where the car may be left for an hour or two.

To the advantage of its proximity to the business and business section and its accessibility through a number of crowded main highways leading the newly widened Cambridge street, the new garage adds exceptional entrance facilities owing to the width of Cambridge street. The motorist drives in and out without interference from the massed ranks of heavy traffic.

The new motor hotel introduces a number of novelties in garage accommodations. Every half hour the air on each floor is automatically renewed. The building is planned for fast service to the motorist who wishes to park for an hour or two, according to Wm. F. Saunders, manager. Each floor is equipped with air and water and has a lot of employees through which it operates as an independent garage unit in itself.

Undue crowding is avoided by an electric fan which constantly keeps the garage interior how many cars a floor can accommodate. A broad spiral ramp just inside the entrance winds up through the building. It is graded low scientifically so that a machine may make the entire ascent without changing gears.

Accompanying appointments for the comfort and convenience of clients are liberally provided.

DIGGERS LOSE DEATH RACE FOR BABY

Benning Horror, Mich., May 11 (A.P.)—Digging down 30 feet volunteer workers look from a well in a barn near here the body of the 10-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Carter. More than 100 workers, spurred by the possibility the child might still be alive, worked twelve hours to reach him.

Efforts to revive the infant with a pump failed. The child was not breathing and not by the full physician said, leaving out the theory on which rescue work was started, that if the child could be reached in time it might be taken out alive.

The shaft leading to the water was so narrow it was believed the child had slipped in gradually, rather than fallen. He was tightly wedged in the shaft. It was impossible to drag him up with grappling hooks.

For Growing Bodies

bread made this way

THE average boy of nine needs as much energy-producing food as his mother. Yet he weighs only half as much!

Modern nutrition experts who analyze the needs of growing children tell us this. And mothers know it! They have only to watch their children eat.

These rapidly growing bodies demand the most nourishing food. That's why White Rose Bread makes a special appeal to mothers.

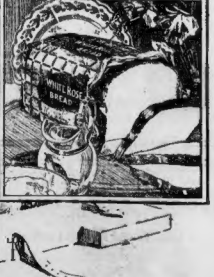

For leading food experts have helped to make White Rose Bread a loaf that every careful housewife wants to serve.

Among the food authorities who have helped to perfect White Rose Bread are nutrition experts of two universities, the heads of two famous cooking schools, and the food editor of a leading magazine.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Smart Set to be Arrayed in Old-time Gowns for Municipal Day Fete

A DISTINCTLY LOVELY FEATURE of annual Municipal League fete is the array of authentic, exquisite old-time costumes brought forth from lavender-sealed treasure chests to clothe radiant femininity for 1-2 day.

BOSTON AND CAMBRIDGE homes hold a wealth of such quaint and elaborate confections, gowns and chaparrans, umbrellas and rhinoceros, trills and furbelows of made and matrons who were the glass of fashion twenty ago.

THEY ALL WILL BE worn for the League's garden fete May 21 (under the illusion of Mrs. Henry Dunlop Tudor's Cambridge estate, the foremost spring flowers just coming into a glory of purple bloom) will be at their lordliest.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE ATTRACTIONS as this annual spring functions are many—a present, taste of the thinking sort familiar in the 19th century drawing rooms, and tea out of doors, served by girls of today in gowns, Francis Parkman's time, already on the list.

HOME-MADE CAKES, lavender bags, bed spreads, mingle their old-time quaintness with modern hear attractions, and over all is the able and efficient management always directing Municipal League efforts.

GUARDIAN ROBERT TREAT PAINE, 21, David Sigourney, Edward Moran, David J. Evans, Stephen Fitzgerald, William H. Howland, Theodore G. Bremer, F. H. Howe, Perry G. Bolter and Donald T. Lyman each have a finger in promoting the Municipal League pie.

A Timid Country Bride Comes to Boston and Falls Prey to a Social Hyena

Phyllis gave a shriek: "Don't dare mention at home that you have been in this apartment this afternoon!" (Posed by Mary Ann Dentler (right) and Ruth Abbott. Photo by Charles G. Snyder.)

David Manning, Boston engineer who has piled up a fortune, meets and weds Charlotte Connolly, daughter of a college professor. He is verging middle age, she is in her early twenties. They come to Boston to live. Dick and Phyllis Fenway are Dave's intimate friends in Boston social life. Phyllis is given Charlotte to introduce to Boston. Charlotte is unused to city ways. She meets Phil Van Alan, sweetheart of Phyllis. A man friend of Van Alan's entertains them. Later, flapper daughter of David Manning thinks Charlotte a mere kid.

Van Alan's friend proved to be a big, loose jointed chap. He carried himself awkwardly and seemed to be in perpetual difficulty with his hands which were huge and brown and hairy despite an overly brilliant manner. He had rather boyish blue eyes and a shy smile as if he pleaded for a friendly favor. His name was Harry Buckner.

"Nouveau riche," Phyllis whispered to Charlotte, as their host ushered them into his expensive but suite. "Phil says he made his money in oil and has buckets of it—money, not oil, I mean. They're like people to know, these friends of mine from the West, because they simply slather you with good food and drink."

Mr. Buckner brought out a bottle of Scotch bearing an expensive label and said: "I've some rare, too, that's the real stuff, and if you don't mind, I'm going to mix you a drink that I am pretty good at—whisky pour such as you have never tasted."

"Sounds good to the theory," remarked Van Alan.

He and Phyllis were already seated side by side on a divan in deep conversation. Charlotte noted that he held Phyllis' hand in both of his and stroked her slim fingers lightly.

Phyllis and Van Alan were enraptured in their private conversation. Charlotte drank her, hesitantly, she did not like the taste at all but she didn't want to seem impudent.

Phyllis glanced at her watch and asked: "Charlotte, we must rush. Phil can drive Charlotte to her train."

While Van Alan went to get his car, Charlotte said to Phyllis: "Mr. Buckner seems very pleasant and rather lonely. I wonder if Dave couldn't ask him to dine with us some night."

Phyllis gave a little shrug. "Ah, my dear, too. Don't dare mention at home that you have been in this apartment this afternoon!"

Mr. Buckner seems very pleasant and rather lonely. I wonder if Dave couldn't ask him to dine with us some night.

HOME LIFE SHOULD BE BASIS

Guidance by Parents Is Big Essential in Developing Good Citizenship

The following letter accepting membership in a nationwide commission to study the causes and seek the remedies for the present crime wave in the United States was received by William Randolph Hearst from State Senator Nathan Straus, Jr., of New York City.

Dear Mr. Hearst:

THE increasing boldness of criminals in our city and in the country gives evidence that we have not discovered any adequate check on crime. At the session of the Legislature just closed, a series of bills was enacted to facilitate the apprehension and conviction of criminal outlaws who have hitherto used the technicalities of law as a means to escape just punishment. I believe this legislation constitutes a step in the right direction.

However, punishment will not alone, in my belief, prove sufficient to curb the crime wave. A greater deterrent than fear of punishment is a sound moral code instilled in childhood. You have stated: "We must try to make the child of crime, but to prevent crime and to cultivate good citizenship. This is the essence of the problem."

HOME LOVE ESSENTIAL. If the children of our cities have no place to play but the streets, we must expect that a certain proportion of them will be subject to the influence of bad companionship, will go wrong. These are the potential criminals. Adequate parks and playgrounds, securely remote from the crime problem, will, in my belief, constitute a safeguard against the development of a spirit of lawlessness in the younger generation.

TINY SHOULDERS!

THINKING over what we shall talk about each day, so many times tries to mind that I hurry to put them down before they are chased away by other thoughts. I have to share these fugitive ideas with you, my dear, unknown friends. Yet often I perceive quite suddenly that it was presumptuous for me to attack subjects too big to be argued out in so few words.

I have tried to learn to control my thoughts. It has become a sort of daily brain gymnastic—an exercise we ought to keep our physical muscles in perfect working order. But in the condensation process I have often had to leave a question quite unexplored.

I only wish I could get my mind to complete my own thought! This little Michael, son of my oldest son, is playing before me. I have a lovely, adorable, innocent little boy of four, sweet and tender enough to melt the heart of the hardest sinner. He always makes me think of Tagore's "Concrete Moon"—perhaps the most adorable poem ever penned to a child's innocence.

Watch any child playing with its hands and hear chasing a butterfly, trying to open a box with its tiny, tender fingers, or build a mud castle or sail a paper boat. Does not the whole story of humanity hands like the cat's of sand my small, graceful, so beautifully built? Yet here I am, building another man—that tiny figure out there straining small shoulders to carry a load of dirt and stones, building in his turn something—he knows not what, even as I myself do not know what I build!

LONG NIGHT COSTS COP HIS LIFE

Officer Sullivan Dies of Malady Due to Watch in Cold Loft

A malady that had its start a number of years ago, when he kept a three-weeks' vigil with other officers in a Chauncy street loft for silk robbers, brought death today to Special Officer Joseph D. Sullivan of the Lagrange street station.

Officer Sullivan died in his home, No. 13 Hacia street, Dorchester. His wife and three young children, Mary, Eleanor and Joseph, survive, as do three sisters and four brothers, two of them former Boston policemen.

During the long vigil in the cell, where his armed officers stood 13-hour shifts waiting for the appearance of the silk thieves, Sullivan contracted an illness that last him off duty on three occasions for long spells and ultimately developed into pneumonia.

Although a policeman for only eight years, he had been a special officer for the last six.

William, Jr., May 11.—Pending the outcome of injuries to Nicholas Donta, 10, of Carle Court, Hanover, who was knocked down by an automobile as he walked from behind the Faneuil hall to enter his home, Herbert J. Lanza of No. 41 Colchester st., Brooklyn, a reckless cotton broker, is held by the police here on a technical charge of reckless driving. This will be charged to a more serious one if the boy dies.

Revel's recovery is doubtful, physicians say. He has a fractured skull, two broken legs and internal injuries. He was taken several yards when struck by Lanza's automobile.

The special committee of five members of the City Council who have investigated the administration of the Boston City Hospital, including the treatment accorded patients reported to the City Council, giving a clean bill of health to hospital officials.

After admitting some defects which the board of trustees is endeavoring to correct, the report says: "Any attempt to shake the confidence of that great army of the afflicted, who must depend upon such an institution for relief, is most unfortunate and entirely unwarranted and unbecoming."

"Plans under way for the extension and development of the hospital are adequate and much to be desired, and when completed the Boston City Hospital will be in a position to serve this community in the future, as it has done in the past, in a manner second to no other similar institution in America, or the world."

DESTITUTE WITH NAME OF GOLD

Judge Pays Nominal Fine of Richman in Federal Court

Too poor, despite his name, to pay a $1 fine, Samuel Richman of Quincy hung his head in embarrassment today in Federal Court.

Judge James M. Lowell, who in a sympathetic mood had assessed the nominal fine, expressed surprise at the defendant's hesitation to pay. "Well, what's the matter, now?" he asked leniently.

Richman raised his head. "The color mounted swiftly to his cheeks as he replied: 'I'm sorry, your honor. I haven't got a dollar.'"

Snatching his hand under his rapist robe, Judge Lowell handed a dollar to the clerk to give to Richman. Richman held it back as he did with the United States, we assured.

He had pleaded guilty to a charge nearly four years old as possessor of a counterfeit bill. For four years his poor health had prevented his appearing in court to receive judgment.

MANY POSTPONEMENTS. Each time in appearance was shrouded he sent a doctor's certificate for examination by the authorities. He was proved the truth of his claim. When he appeared today Assistant U. S. District Attorney Stone decided to recommend the $1 fine.

Judge Lowell was told that Richman had a wife and five children, and it still in delicate health. It was in sympathy with these conditions that the judge had assessed the nominal fine.

Nicholson declares that the Exchange Street widening bill was introduced in an effort to force a vote on the bill. Many shifts were noted in voting.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 11 (A.P.).—The Southern Pacific Association of the A. A. U. has recommended to the national body that it permit Charles Hoff of Norway, world's champion pole-vaulter, to continue his exhibitions in America. The national association threatened to disbar Hoff from further competition in this country following his refusal to compete in a recent San Francisco track meet.

The Southern Pacific Association's action followed a meeting last night attended by Charles Paddock and others prominent in athletics. The resolution supporting Hoff was adopted by a vote of 24 to 1.

Owen R. Bird, association registrar, read a statement from Hoff, in which the pole-vaulter stated he had not received the invitation to the San Francisco meet in time to permit him to participate. He also said he was not in condition.

New York, May 11 (A.P.).—Charles Hoff, stands suspended from further American competition for his failure to take part in a meet at San Francisco last Thursday, it was said at Amateur Athletic Union headquarters today. The pole vault champion will remain so pending reconsideration of his case by the foreign relations committee of the A. A. U.

Officials characterized as "bunk" statements credited to Hoff that he did not receive the invitation to the San Francisco meet in time to permit him to participate. He was aware of it before leaving New York on his trip West, it was said.

COBB SURE TO PROVE STERN FOE

Strike Pitcher a Masterful Game Against Indians; Bobbles Pave Way to Defeat

FOR MORE YEARS than we care to remember the Detroit Tigers have been a formidable force in the annals of baseball. In the past days, when Bill Carrigan was manager, the Tigers were a team of champions, and it was not until the arrival of the new manager, Harry Campbell, that they were defeated by the Boston Red Sox in the World Series.

The Monday game will prove a test for the Indians, as they will be facing a team that is sure to be a stern foe. The game is expected to be a close one, and it will be a real test for the Indians.

THE REDUCED GOLF PROGRAM OF WALKER CUP PLAY

TEAM HITS BAD BREAK IN BRITAIN

International Matches Likely to Be Played, Despite Industrial Debacle

London, May 11 (A.P.)—The American Walker Cup team which arrived in the Aquaticia, this afternoon found their first week in England, almost shot to pieces by the general strike, but as yet there are no indications of a postponement of the event of their trip—the international team matches at St. Andrew's June 8 and 9.

Golfing authorities feel that even if the strike should last until June the railways and general life of the country will have been restored to normal conditions and that it is probable that the British team will be enabled to play the last of the men engaged in various national emergency services.

The match between Francis Olinette, Bobbie Jones and Alva Mitchell and George Dunlop, which has been scheduled for Thursday on the Midway Club course, has been postponed. It was to have been the first match of the American team and was to have been played for the trophy of Walter Hagen. The American team is expected to arrive in London May 15 and have been expected to play the first match on May 16.

It is likely that the match will be played on May 24 or 25, when the British team will have arrived. The match is expected to be played on the Midway Club course, which is one of the best in England. The match is expected to be played on the Midway Club course, which is one of the best in England.

The British policy of trying to play the Walker match, despite the strike, is the same as that adopted for the cricket matches against the Australians.

The best possible teams will be put into the field in the latter part of the week, but the strike will still be a factor in the play.

After all, there's nothing like inspiration poetry to make a person want to lead a bigger and better life. Take, for instance, the sentiment that has gushed from the soul of a Yellow Taxicab driver, in the following lines, reprinted from the Yellow-Gram—

I always try to look my best by being neat and clean, And giving the riding public something not often seen.

I never smoke while in my cab. Am always polite and never crab. If business is dull and things not right I look toward tomorrow or the coming night.

I inspect my cab-brush it out after trips. For these are the things that bring me tips. Although I'm only a driver now, Some day I'll show the others how To ease from the job below. Stick with the company and watch it grow.

Why do not other vocations, as well as school driving, inspire such poetry?

For instance, it would be nice if trainee cops could hand to motorists instead of tags a printed verse, something like this—

I always try to be polite, I'm never cross or mean, I give the riding public something not often seen. I do not like to write a tag, I speak clearly, or half-draw. When clear I get what I light or draw.

I put them on to my sister-in-law, When someone tries to cramp my style.

By curbing me I only smile. And hold my tongue as best I can. It's merely law, two's year old man.

FOXY GRANDPA'S DAILY BEDTIME STORY

WE were visiting in British East Africa at the bungalow of an English gentleman who was out there in the rubber business. One evening after he had come home from work, he changed his clothes and came out in white flannel trousers and a black and white striped jacket.

"That's a very smart blouse you're wearing," I remarked. "I think I shall have to get one when I go to England."

"Wouldn't be good to wear very far from the house here," laughs the Englishman. "Why not? Inquired."

"I might be mistaken for a cobra," jumped out of his head as he listened to our conversation asked:

"But wouldn't you be afraid to walk out in the jungle and meet a lion with any kind of coat on, sir?"

"Well," the Englishman replied slowly, "I wouldn't exactly set out to encounter a lion, but you see, they're really not such bad fellows."

"Lions not bad?" gasped Bobby. "No, not really," said the Englishman. "You are, many people believe that lions are cowards. That, I think, is not the case. The truth of the matter is, lions do not kill for the sake of killing. They only kill when they are hungry, and it is a known fact that it's a lion meets a man he will run rather than put up a fight, unless he is forced into it."

"But there are man-killing lions, are there not?" I asked, surprised at the statement made by my friend.

"Oh, yes," he said. "But the man-killing lions are usually old fellows whose strength is failing and who haven't the power to hunt wild animals. It is only an aged lion that turns man-hunter."

The next afternoon toward sunset, Bobby, Bunny and I were con-ing home from the camp, and to go back to the bungalow, we were obliged to pass through a strip of woods.

It was growing dark and unusually we all hastened our steps. Bunny, as usual, was hopping on ahead when suddenly he gave a start, turned back like a shot and when he reached me, gave one leap and landed in the pocket of my hunting jacket. "Lion," he whispered in terror.

I looked up, and sure enough, there was a great big lion. I turned cold and Bobby clung to me trembling. I reached for my gun to be ready in case the lion should charge us. But just as I was pulling it out of the holster, the lion gave us one inquisitive look, grunted, and slunk off through the thicket.

"It is needless to say that we were out of that woods before you could say Jack Robinson, and as we came near the bungalow, Bobby said:

"That gentleman was right, wasn't he Foxy Grandpa?"

"Just as pleased, however," murmured Bunny, "that I don't happen to be a serried rabbit."

Children Look Out of Window---Asking Questions

Children ARE GROWING. The Man Who Ceases to Look and to Ask CEASES TO GROW

You see a woman enter the car. In her arms she carries a small baby. It has nothing in life to do as yet but to wriggle its arms and legs. So she puts it on its back on her knees that it may wriggle comfortably.

She also has a child, a boy or girl from three to ten years of age. As soon as the baby has been straitened out properly, its dress fixed so that its legs can kick freely, its head and neck made comfortable, THE OLDER CHILD IS STRUTTED SO THAT IT CAN LOOK OUT OF THE WINDOW.

You would think it strange if you saw a boy or girl of seven or eight sit quietly in a street car, keeping its eyes inside of the car. You expect such a child to turn around, kneel on the seat and look out. And you expect the long, constant series of questions, as the young, eager face is turned toward the mother. Everything is interesting, everything arouses thought, everything must be explained.

Compare yourself, the average grown man and woman, with that child looking out of the window. We grown-up people keep our eyes inside the car. We are tired, bored, the world looks old to us, things that are happening do not interest us.

AND THAT MEANS THAT WE HAVE CEASED TO GROW.

Would we suggest that grown men and women should kneel on the seats and look out of the window? No. But we do say that it is bad for the man or woman who ceases to see eagerly and constantly the eyes and imagination through which alone THE BRAIN CAN GROW.

What the moving street car is to the child, with all its excitement and wonder, THIS MOVING EARTH SHOULD BE TO THE GROWN MAN OR WOMAN.

Every night of our lives we move through mysterious space, but we have the opportunity to look out at the wonders of the universe around us. We have the opportunity to ask questions, and to have them answered by the books on astronomy and the other sciences.

How many of us look out; how many of us ask questions of books or of learned men? NOT ONE IN TEN THOUSAND AFTER THIRTY YEARS OF AGE; PERHAPS ONE IN A THOUSAND BETWEEN TWENTY-FIVE AND THIRTY; ONE IN A HUNDRED BETWEEN TWENTY AND TWENTY-FIVE.

One of the best sayings we have ever read is this: "Every child is a genius, and every genius is a child." That is literally true. Genius, above all things, means the power to see things AS THEY ARE.

The genius in the grown man means, of course, creative power, hard work, concentration; but it means above all THE OPEN MIND, THE POWER TO RECEIVE IMPRESSIONS.

The man who ceases to look out, to inquire, to ask, to imagine, is like one who has lost his sight. He has not lost the physical sight of the eyes, but the spiritual sight of the brain, which is infinitely more precious.

This writer once listened to a famous inhabitant of Chicago making his first trip up the Rhine. He sat on a small chair, looking INWARD, with never a glance at the old towers, the hills and the vineyards. And as he looked inward he talked with a friend about a slaughter-house that he had seen in Paris, earnestly proving that it was very inferior even to a second rate slaughter-house in Chicago—not really big enough for a decent refrigerating plant. And that supremely intellectual conversation lasted him until he was off the boat, ready to eat the next meal at the next hotel.

There was nothing exceptional about this man—others like him are in New York, Paris, London, everywhere in the world. HE HAD SIMPLY LOST THE FACULTY OR THE DESIRE TO LOOK OUT OF THE WINDOW. It is easy to understand that real growth for him had ceased. Very likely he might, with time, become a very much able and more energetic slaughter-house proprietor. He might become more and more A USEFUL MAN, since it is useful to give work to other men.

He might, in fact, become a thoroughly admirable citizen by distributing good meat and providing for human hunger. But, as a human mind, a human soul, he was a blind man, his growth had stopped.

A good many of us wonder what is the matter with us, why we do not grow. The answer nine times out of ten would be, WE HAVE STOPPED BEING. We have stopped feeding our minds; we have stopped "looking out of the window." We have gathered together our little supply of information and our little supply of impressions. We have our little fool- ish stories that we tell over and over. We have arranged our system of dressing ourselves, we have decided what we like for breakfast and for dinner. We have read a few books and we talk about them, AND WE READ VERY FEW NEW ONES. We go occasionally to some foolish play, and think we have a sense of humor if we laugh, or believe ourselves sensitive and sympathetic if we weep.

BUT WE ARE NOT GROWING. THAT CHILDISH EAGERNESS FOR KNOWLEDGE, WHICH MARKS THE LITTLE BOY AND THE GREAT GENIUS, NEARLY ALL MEN LOSE EARLY. And after that they become valuable dummies, little wheels in the great machine, useful buyers or sellers or workers.

But they are not really MEN any longer. Lucky for the human race that death was invented; lucky that Death, with his scythe, comes along and cuts us off by the middle, making room FOR THE CHILDREN THAT WILL LOOK OUT OF THE WINDOWS, MAKING ROOM FOR THE FRESHER MINDS THAT WILL RECEIVE AND USE NEW TRUTHS AND NEW IMPRESSIONS.

The man with his eyes in the car, the man who does not even see the story, the tragedy, the inspirations, the brotherhood in the face on the opposite seat, might as well be back in the ground. For there is more earth than man about him.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"YOU know that man we met down at camp last Sunday who says to the wife, 'What's his name?' I mean—Dane—Dane—Dane—begin with a D—faint! It funny I can't remember! Dahn—Dahn—Dahn!"

And that afternoon, while you're discussing the new garage with Jim and have entirely forgotten the whole matter, the name does come. It was Dahn—funny you couldn't have remembered it before.

Yes—but a whole lot funnier that you could remember it now, my friend. Have you ever tried to puzzle out why you do "remember" things like that—hours or days after you first wish to do so? What is it that restores the lost fragment of your memory?

The scientist says that it is your "subconscious mind" which thus serves you. What is the subconscious mind? "A vast storehouse of memories, experiences, facts, and ideas, some of which are your personal experiences. The rest of it is racial experience and so on. It is a good definition, only unfortunately it doesn't answer the question, but I can't search through those records for you and select the one you want."

Why would we be arching do for you? As far as we know, such a storehouse exists. But we don't know. Intelligent, Controlled, Consciousness, the most elaborate mechanism on contrivance couldn't do it. The most delicate organ of our physical body couldn't do it.

You Need Personality.

A personality is required to do work like that—such a personality as we find in humans and some of the higher animals. So, to perform even this commonplace act, "the subconscious" must be more than a storehouse—it must be another self.

Is there, then, another self within us—something for you—guiding you—going through all your ordinary tasks which are far from ordinary or commonplace?

If there is, another self, what is it like? Has it an independent consciousness? Does it know what you sleep or forget? It would seem so, for when it is this other self that works while your outer self sleeps or forgets, it is doing its share of the work when your outer self is asleep.

outer body of ours is but the envelope and tool for our real, inner, immortal self which never dies.

Poor Argument.

His belief is very simple and definite. It is not the belief of an emotional visionary, but of a hard-headed scientist. He does not think we house angels who depart from hence to heavenly mansions. He thinks our Other Self lives all the time, and that it is the training and education you get in this life that determine what it will do for you after death.

Why would we say that bodies must be so? Only because we know of nothing else of which they could be made, but that lack of knowledge is not very efficient as an argument. True, if they were made of anything else they would not be apparent to us now, with our particular evolutionally-derived sense organs.

HOW CHILDREN CAN BE SHOWN PITFALLS OF PLEASURE

As parents are not too careful to keep your children from seeing many things which are bound to one later in life? Young people of today must be worldly-wise, to a certain extent. It saves many a little experience to become informed by seeing how things look when in company with parents.

Instead of keeping a child always away from public places where all sorts and kinds of persons mingle, wouldn't it be better to go with the children, occasionally, giving them time to observe what is going on around them?

Let their reactions to the unaccounted course of action which they see followed by certain enjoyment seekers.

Call their attention to the folly of these things and seek to have them get it all in the true light.

Teach them how to avoid such experiences. Tell them what it is likely to result from such looks or may give people.

ALL BIG THINGS ARE DONE BY TRYING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE are some men who can obey orders; and there are some men who can get things done.

It is well to be obedient; it is better to be resourceful.

When Alexander could not untie the Gordian knot he cut it with his sword.

A resourceful man is one who, when he cannot do a thing one way, does it another.

He keeps trying.

When it's time to quit he begins.

Success in life is not like shooting at a mark with a rifle; it is like trying to hit a mark with a stream of water from a hose; you just keep on till finally you hit it—maybe.

It is well to know how; it is better to try; for by trying you learn how.

Success is like picking a lock, not like working an example in long division.

It is like solving a rebus more than it is like demonstrating a theorem in geometry.

It is like starting a fire with damp wood more than it is like getting a chemical reaction in a laboratory.

It is like fitting together the pieces of a torn letter more than it is like building a wall of bricks.

All the big things are accomplished by trying, trying, trying. Only the little things can be done by rule and a cheap hand to do them.

To paint a great picture means infinite approximations. None is painted by rule.

Nobody learns to write well, except by writing. Only by keeping overcastly at it, whether we feel like it or not, with inspiration and without, in quiet and in din, in comfort and in dyspepsia, "no day without a line," only so comes the mysterious endowment of style.

The man who fails is not the man who has no gift, no chance, no pull, no encouragement, no training; it is the man who quits.

Genius is the inexhaustible capacity for going on.

Training, education, and the like before you go to work is valuable; but it is the training and education you get by and while doing your work that counts most.

There are three rules for success. The first is: Go on. The second is: Go on. And the third is: Go on.

You can't win a woman, nor achieve a goal, nor can you make hits, nor get elected to office, nor build up a trade, nor get yourself liked, nor achieve contentment, nor get to heaven.

Life is an endless experiment.

Wisdom is the precipitate of experiment.

Relief is the spirit of experiment.

Character is the subjective result of experiment.

And success the objective result.

Go on!
